New York. 16th May 2019 – DataArt, the global technology consultancy that designs, develops, and supports software solutions, will be speaking and exhibiting at the CIO Summit in Chicago on 29th-30th May.

The Generis American CIO and IT Summit is an event centred around current trends, strategic insights and best practices in technology, cyber security, risk management and managing talent.

Discussing the topic 'Blockchain Winter: the story behind the hype', Denis Baranov and Kirill Timofeev, Principal Consultants at DataArt, will talk about ways to find the appropriate use cases for new blockchain technology, do's and don'ts for a first distributed ledger (DLT) project, good and bad real case scenarios from various industries, and how to use blockchain alongside current technology systems while reaping the rewards of both. This will be followed by an open discussion about the current DLT landscape.

DataArt has substantial experience in building production blockchain systems for clients, including projects on security issuance and transaction settlement, security depository and proxy voting, and a government public assistance benefits management system.
